CAPABILITY TO PROPOSE AND SOURCE JAPANESE PAINTS

Based in Tokyo for 60 years, our Japan headquarters has a long history of trusted relationships with paint manufacturers, enabling us to source the full range of Japanese paint products efficiently. The Japanese coatings industry is structured in such a way that paint distributors like us fulfill the role of supply chain experts, while paint manufacturers can focus on developing unique products. This sharing of roles has worked well and has resulted in world-class paints.

Japanese level technical support

Our mission begins after paints are delivered. Because we deeply understand the difficulty of transforming paint into a solid coating film. Our paint technicians in Japan feel the exact same way. That is why we form cross-border teams to provide technical support at your coating worksites!

Associated materials other than paint are also available.

The expertise of the Japanese painting industry is, of course, not limited to paints alone. We have many ideas for quality paint pretreatment chemicals and unique subsidiary materials. Of course, we can also arrange equipment and devices for use in painting. Of course, we have not forgotten about support and maintenance in this case. We focus on a wide range of support to achieve the coating film you are seeking Paint is a hazardous product. Don't hold too much; procure only what you need, when you "need it. Store it safely and properly in Coature's hazardous goods warehouse near you.

Paint, a hazardous product, has restrictions on storage at your plant. Fire prevention regulations will become increasingly strict. We have a fully equipped hazardous goods warehouse that you can make full use of. We also have a regular schedule for ocean transport from Japan, which allows you to achieve a streamlined sourcing plan. We can flexibly respond to your requests for direct importation, duty-free clearance by issuing a certificate of origin, and more!

Our contribution does not end here. Paint Voyager is only the first step in Coature's suite of services. We will search for, develop, and propose Vietnamese paints of equivalent quality, using our network of many Vietnamese paint manufacturers to help our customers reduce their costs.
